Paying Men for What They Know

In this day and generation men get paid more for what they know than for what they do. When the question is asked of the men in charge at the water plant what is the reason that the pumps are pumping to capacity and yet no water is to be found in the mains, and when these men fail to answer the question, it is self-evident that they do not know.

So that if any part of the money the city pays to the men in charge at the water plant is pay for what they know it is quite as evident that the city has hitched up somewhere with a counterfeit.

If an accident had happened it is quite conceivable that it might be that no blame therefor would be attached to the men in charge. It is generally conceded that there are such things as accidents that are unavoidable. But when the pay roll bears the names of men who, when something goes wrong, do not know what it is that is wrong it is time to get the axe and go in search of whoever it is whose business it is to know and who does not know.

CITY PLANNING; A CUE FROM PENNSYLVANIA

Pittsburg and Scranton, Pennsylvania, are the first cities in the United States to take seriously the matter of city planning and to recognize that something better than the helter-skelter by accident method by which cities are laid out is necessary to make a city habitable.

Permission granted by the Pennsylvania legislature gives these two cities power to add a department of city planning to their municipal machinery, the department to be composed of five men who are not connected with the municipal administration in any other way, with the mayor and members of the council ex-officio members. The board is empowered to employ the necessary experts to devise plans to meet the present and future requirements of the city, giving special attention to the elimination of grade crossings, the alignment of existing grades, streets and surveys; the extension of parks and boulevards and the direction of the general industrial and commercial development of the city.

Just how much a committee such as this might do toward the rational planning of a city can be comprehended by a glance at any map of any of the western cities. To a city like Edmonton, for instance, in the laying out of streets alone such a committee within the past five years could have been of inestimable value by averting the crazy-quilt system (or lack of it) under which subdivisions have been added to the original survey. And only a very little planning might have separated the industrial from the residential district, to the immense benefit of both, while a plan which would have grouped the public buildings of the city, constructed and to be, on one grand boulevard is something that such a committee could easily have laid out and which, if consummated rightly, might have made Edmonton one of the picture cities of the continent.

Taking the cue from Pittsburg and Scranton, both of which are a century or so older than Edmonton, it is not now too late to do something in the way of city planning for this city even yet. Edmonton already has some enthusiasts on this line, such as C. Lionel Gibbs and Arthur Harrison, who have already shown themselves possessed of the right idea. A city planning committee in the hands of competent men such as these, employing architects, with authority to draw plans which would become operative upon the votes of the ratepayers, might accomplish wonders within the next few years in the way of beautifying Edmonton, making it a more comfortable city to live in and bringing some kind of order out of the jumble which the city map now presents.

Edmonton in this respect is no worse than any of the other western cities; it is far better than the majority and no city in Canada can boast of a finer or more beautiful main street, which alone is an indication that Edmonton has a vastly larger conception of the fitness of things than most cities. But as Edmonton has led all other cities in municipal development why should not this city round out its activities by leading in city planning.

PRINCE ALBERT AN EXAMPLE IN ENTERPRISE

The ratepayers of Prince Albert, by a vote of 411 to 4, have ratified a bylaw to raise the sum of $500,000 for the construction of a power plant at La Colle Falls, 25 miles from the city. The plans call for a further expenditure at a later date of another half-million, the first half-million providing a capacity of 3,000 horse power and the second half-million increasing this to 10,000 horse power. The scheme calls for a 750 foot concrete dam, a double transmission line 25 miles long, a steamer lock which will be installed by the Dominion government and a ten-unit power plant to be installed in a concrete power house 230x58 feet. Construction is to be commenced immediately.

From the Edmonton point of view the development undertaken by Prince Albert is interesting as an indication of how much importance other towns in the west attach to the possibility of cheap power.

The fight for industrial supremacy in the west must inevitably pivot on the cost of power. All things considered, no city in the west has any great or outstanding advantage to offer over any other. The cost of labor must be about the same. The climatic conditions are uniform. The topographical conditions offer little variations worthy of mention. The differentials in freight rates will always be at the caprice of the railways and the advantages will naturally flow to the cities which have most freight to offer.

On the power question alone is there room for any wide difference in cost, and in this matter Prince Albert has taken the most forward step of any city on the prairies, investing a cool million in power construction for the purpose of being able to give power users energy at $25 per horse power. Prince Albert citizens are ready to spend their money in order to secure the advantage which will secure the power necessary to that future.

Edmonton also has visions of an industrial future, but compared with the little city of the Saskatchewan, Edmonton is much behind the times.

Aside from the abortive Grand Rapids attempt, never a feasible proposition, Edmonton has never made a survey of the possibilities for cheap power in the vicinity. It is quite within the range of reasonableness that a search of the power possibilities of the Saskatchewan would show quite as good an opportunity for this city as Prince Albert is spending its million dollars on.

Unless Edmonton develops power cheap enough to compare favorably with other western towns she may wake up some day to the realization that she is handicapped in the race for greatness.

VERY DIFFERENT
By Kenneth Harris

I fear there can be little doubt that she I call My Own. It is growing—well, we'll call it stout. I may say, she has grown. It takes some reach to span her waist, but she is not to blame. And I should call it wretched taste to comment on the same.

I've never spoken of her weight. I know she'll find her way. Allusions to her wicker state. She's very sensitive. It's possible that I might strike a person as a chump. But I remark to her I like to see a woman plump.

And further, I have thought it right to speak in blistering tones of ladies who are somewhat stout as racks of skin and bones. To please that woman I've declared that she was getting thin. And like a gentleman I've spared her almost triple chin.

And yet, as tactful as I've been, as thoughtful and as kind, as far from everything that's mean, as unceremonious, as I admit it's said: "This is the sort of thing I hear—and I admit it's said: 'You need a nice toupee, my dear, you're getting very bald.'"

Of course, I do get mad at that and generally say, "Perhaps I need a switch or rat, but not a nice toupee." I wish, my darling, that you'd stop that silly sort of rat, may be somewhat thin on top, but I don't mind I'm not.

Upon my shapely cranium the hair is not dense in certain places as in some, but bald, that's look of sense. When I get bald I shall not care, I can't be always young, but don't you think that if I were, she ought to hold her tongue!

Col. L. L. Livingston, who represented the Fifth Georgia district in Congress for many years, until his defeat in the last election, is to become a candidate for the seat of Representative Trible of the Eighth district.

Democratic leaders in North Dakota are working quietly to enlist the support of other western States in a movement to secure the vice-presidential nomination for John Burke, who is now serving his third term as governor of North Dakota.

Not the least discouraged by four defeats, officers of the Oregon State Equal Suffrage association are preparing to wage a most vigorous campaign to carry the state for women's suffrage at the presidential election to be held next year.

FORT GEORGE HAS BRILLIANT FUTURE

MANY INDUSTRIES ARE NOW BEING ESTABLISHED IN NEW T.T.P. DIVISION TOWN

One day last May E. L. Wright who had lived in Edmonton for some years took his departure along the western line of the G.T.P. to go to Fort George. His reasons for going were chiefly that he had purchased some property there from the Fort George and Fraser Valley Land Co., limited in Edmonton and wanted to see for himself what the possibilities were of the town developing along the lines laid out for it by those from whom he had made his purchase.

After a trip along the construction road west of the railroad he with one or two companions constructed a raft for the trip down the upper waters of the Fraser. The run down stream was turned into a sort of pleasure trip, the weather was fine and fishing and hunting are times that tempt any man with any sense of pleasure. Despite the leisure with which they traveled they made the landing at George on the 6th of June. The country through which they had come had given them all a great surprise from its appearance of native richness of soil and they found the country around their new home just as good.

Mr. Wright found his property was situated on a large level space at the top of the banks of the Nechaco river about a mile and a half from the confluence of that river with the Fraser.

The work of clearing the level scrub from the townsite and the grading of the road was in progress and has been continued all the summer. Buildings have been under construction and several new two story buildings have been constructed to accommodate the store keepers who have come into town.

Shortly after his arrival a new saw-mill that has been built on the bank of the Nechaco river commenced operations, and until that time some of the construction work being held up for want of lumber but now all the work that can be handled at one time can be carried on without fear of interruption from that cause.

While staying at Fort George one of the things that Mr. Wright was watching most closely was the condition of the climate from a farmer's point of view. When he left he states that the crops were in just as fine condition as any he has seen since he came out and during the whole of his stay there he never saw the slightest sign of frost. The garden stuff growing at the Fort was in the best of condition and he had seen in any part of Canada.

Speaking of the transportation facilities Mr. Wright did not seem to think that much of a rush would take place into the country before the railroad was built, but he thought that the current made the hauling of any heavy load up the river a very tedious affair.

That this same swift current is not all a disadvantage is proved by the fact that already some hydraulic engineers have been taking note of the possibilities of these rivers as the source of water power for the future industries that will develop in connection with the mining industries that will shortly be in full swing in the vicinity of the town.

Already the town is preparing for the travelling public in the way of providing hotel accommodation.

When speaking of the recent closing of the trail by which the T.T.P. became the owners of the Fort George Indian reserve. Mr. Wright seemed to be well pleased that he had left a little farther westward for the Indian reserve is not so high as the land lies immediately to the westward, but that portion of the railroad land is so low as to be always subject to flooding by extra rise in either of the rivers which meet at that point.

After three months' stay in the new town Mr. Wright concluded that he could not do better than take his family in there as well as he came back to Edmonton, will sell his property here and then to return by the Ashcroft route to his new home.

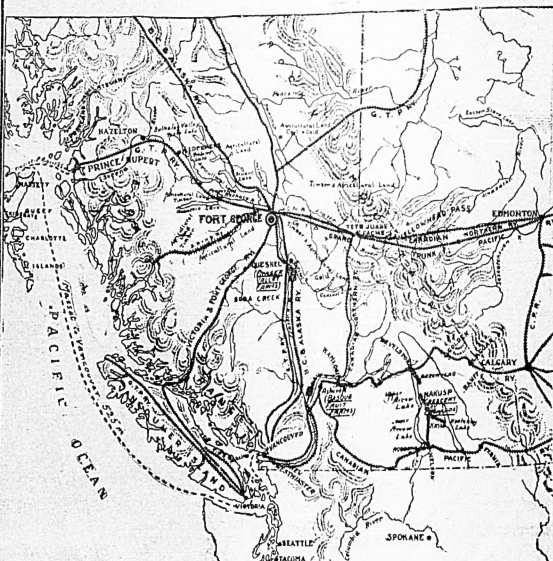

Woburn's theatre, New York, will open on September 14, when the Woburn will offer Edmund Press in "A Man of Honor," a modern drama by Isaac Landman. Mr. Press will be supported by Edward B. Robins, Ben Johnson, Ralph Delmore, Muriel Star, Jay Wallace and Hans Roberts.

Fort George

When the mountains were formed and the broad valleys took their shapes, Nature made the location for the future city of Fort George. It is just as natural and proper that an important city should be built on that spot as for a baby to take milk.

We are doing something to help Nature. We are calling attention to the natural resources, and, ourselves, trying to take advantage of these and urging others to acquire valuable holdings at Fort George, but the real foundation of the future greatness of Fort George is in conditions which no man has created; among these we name:

1100 miles of navigable waterways, extending north, south, east and west, uniting at Fort George and there making the strategic commercial metropolis of an area rich in Vast agricultural lands.

Gold-mining territory of proven character.

Coal lands ready to produce the best of coal cheaply and in inexhaustible abundance.

Merchandise timber in great bodies of virgin forest.

Pulp-wood material for generations of newspaper readers.

Waterpower to run hundreds of miles of trolley lines and to light and furnish power for a city.

If you read this, have a few dollars, or many of them, if you can borrow the money necessary—do not let the sun go down before you make the first step toward letting all these natural advantages at Fort George lure to your benefit.

If you do not own a lot at Fort George, or several of them, you are missing a chance that is really worth taking.

Take Time by the forelock—not by the tail. Write now.

Mr. E. J. Chamberlain, Vice-President and General Manager of the Grand Trunk Pacific system, says:

"Fort George is destined to become the most important point and the greatest city between Prince Rupert and Edmonton, and is the point from which we propose to enter the rich territory in the north and south."

CELLS ARE BANKED HIGH WITH FLOWERS

SEATTLE MEN ARRESTED FOR CONSPIRACY TO OBSTRUCT JUSTICE ARE STILL IN JAIL

(Western Associated Press)

Seattle, Sept. 1.—With their cells banked high with flowers brought to them by friends in automobiles, Congressman Oliver T. Erickson, Hugo Kelley and Paul Muir, three of the nine men arrested for conspiracy to obstruct justice, as a result of the mine arrest, are today awaiting in jail preliminary arraignment before United States Commissioner Tolson.

The examination will take place at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and it is expected that the prosecution will attempt to bring out the full details concerning the purpose of last Friday's mine arrest, the failure of the judge, Tolson, and the popular movement against the injunction issued by him in the fight with the Seattle and Portland traction lines. The other defendants who will be present are former Mayor A. V. Fawcett, of Tacoma, Leroy Sanders, editor of the Seattle Star, B. H. Canfield, Attorney John H. Berry, Attorney Thomas B. Horner and Will Hamilton.

After the hearing Commissioner Tolson probably will give $5000 bonds and will be released, but Kelley and Muir stated that they will stay in jail until their case is tried. The federal grand jury meets September 19, and the cases may come before it at that time.

Action in making the sensational arrests has resulted in no claims of protest from those holding for the injunction and removal of Judge Hanford.

Attorney Thomas B. Horner, one of those arrested said today:

"Our arrest involves the great fundamental right of free speech. No legal tactic or technicality can make it anything else. The circumstance that the whole affair is that the people understand the issue and are aroused to its importance."

Plays and Players

The Tolson sisters, aerialists, are a recent German importation.

The work of pulling down Madison Square Garden, New York, will begin next February.

Marguerite Clark is to star in Owen Davis' new play, "When All the World Was Young."

Harry H. Smith and Reynold de Koven are at work upon a new musical play for the Shuberts.

John Foy's new musical farce is called "The Pet of the Petticoats."

It will open at Astor Park, August 25.

Fritz Schaff is to appear in "The Duchess," by Joseph Herbert and Harry H. Smith, with music by Victor Herbert.

Edgar Allen Wood is said to be the Gayle Pick of the Cavendish. There are more of his comedies being played in vaudeville than are credited to any other author.

Marcelle Hingston recently appeared in Los Angeles in a new play, entitled "Kindling," and the work of Charles Kenyon. The play was well received and will soon be seen in New York.

Yvette Guilbert, who will appear in concert under the management of H. E.

You Should Tremble And Shudder

When an unrepentant druggist offers you a substitute for Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

If you are suddenly attacked by DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS OR PAINS IN THE STOMACH, CHOLERA MORBUS, SUMMER COMPLAINT, OR ANY LOOSENESS OF THE BOWELS, do not experiment with some new and untried remedy, but get one that has stood the test of time.

For 62 years this wonderful medicine has been used in thousands of homes in Canada, and has given universal satisfaction. When you want a bottle of "Dr. Fowler's," insist on being given the one that has no name, no reputation, no preparation may be dangerous to your health.

Mr. C. C. Castle, Toronto, Man., writes: "Just a word in favor of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, which I used last summer for Cramps in the Stomach and Diarrhoea. I was very sick for a week and had to do anything but I purchased a bottle of the above remedy, and after three or four doses I was as well as ever."

The price is 50 cents per bottle. See that the name, The T. Millburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., appears on the label, as we are the manufacturers and sole proprietors of this remedy.

Marcelle Anelli will begin her season, "Green Skinkies," and "Jail will try Israel." Zanzavilla's play, "The New Babylon."

"Coke" Smith, with a troupe of five, will make her American debut under the Shuberts in "Les Bohèmes de Chicheston," followed by "The Bohèmes de Chicheston," followed by "The Bohèmes de Chicheston."

"Next," a new farce by Hilda Johnson with Helen Lowell as the star, will be one of the early New York productions coming to the city.

"Little Blue," adapted from the German by A. E. Thomas and Edward Paulson, will be one of the early musical productions of Henry W. Savage.

Marion Harris will not come to America until next January, as he is booked to appear in the London Coliseum Garden round the theatre.

Mary Boland will play her fourth season as John Brown's leading woman in his new play, "The Little Millionaire," at the Lyric Theatre.

George M. Cohan, with his mother and father, is to appear in September in his new play, "The Little Millionaire," at the Lyric Theatre.

Edgar Allen Wood is said to be the Gayle Pick of the Cavendish. There are more of his comedies being played in vaudeville than are credited to any other author.

The Manicure Lady

"Was there much happened over there while I was in Europe?" asked the Manicure Lady.

"Oh, not much," replied the Head Barber, "Colonel Astor is going to get married again, or something of that sort, and Roosevelt has been in the public eye once more, long enough to confess that he has saved the country. He admits it. And I see that the young Prince of Wales is getting sick and tired of his new job and would like to sidestep it. I don't blame him, at that. A kid of his age ought to be playing around some place like Coney Island and not wearing royal robes and funny crowns. And about the only other new thing that I can think about is that Brooklyn hasn't got to win the National League pennant. Neither Boston."

Not the Same

"I suppose the same old game of footwork has come in here to have their nails did while I was abroad," she asked.

"No," said the Head Barber, "To tell you the truth the art also took your place while you were away was one of them refined arts that seems to drag in refined men by the chain. Your old pals Joe Blow, the bookkeeper, and desperate Davey and Billy Stephenson were away, and maybe you won't see them again, now that you're back."

"I wouldn't care to see some of them," said the Manicure Lady, "but I would sure miss Davey, and you don't need to call him desperate, either. Just because he is a plumber is no sign that he can't take care of his hands. I admire him for it. But what about this art that took my place, George? I don't follow you when you talk about her being so refined, unless you mean that she was more refined than me. Goodness know I had no private tailor and never went to no swell boarding school, but I guess I am as refined as any girl that bustled in here to take my place while I was abroad. The chances are that I am more refined. I bet she was four-fifths of that refined stuff."

"No, she wasn't," said the Head Barber, who noticed that he had some lady's "goat" rumble round the shop. "She was really refined, and she could make up better poetry than your brother Wilfred. She made up three pieces of verse in one afternoon and dedicated every one of them to me."

Getting a Goat

"Wasn't that sweet of her?" said Johnson, who was bringing an orchestra of seven to accompany her old-fashioned instruments in a sketch, called "An Evening with Marie Antoinette at Versailles."

The plays in which the celebrated French actress Madame Simonne will appear during her fall season in this country are: Henri Bernstein's "The Thief" and "The Whitebird," and Rudin's "The Lady of Dreams."

Madame Simonne will play in English.

the Manicure Lady frostily. "It must have been a tip of the hat."

"It was real good," declared the Head Barber. "Some of it sounded like Walt Whitman."

"That shows how much you know about poets," snipped the Manicure Lady. "You mean Henry Whitworth Whitman. You make me feel, anyhow, George, with all them arts that you are all the time putting on. What do you know about anything like poetry? I know that them safety razor fellers have driven some barbers to burn on rainy days, but I never in all my life thought that they would drive one to poetry."

"It was great stuff," persisted the Head Barber. "I remember three of the lines word for word."

"And so together in some waiting light we drifted into starlit Arcady."

"I've heard the authors of eternity," said the Manicure Lady, "but I don't believe she did it. I'll bet she wasn't educated enough. I bet she was really refined."

"The Head Barber again," snipped the Manicure Lady. "So is laid."

Officials Interested in Park Resources

Steps Will be Taken to Make Springs Attractive to Tourists Visiting Reserve in Rockies

Active interest is being taken by Grand Teton people officials in all natural resources of Jasper park which are likely to attract in any way tourist traffic to the newly opened pleasure resort. Up to the present time little has been heard in the outside world about what is in Jasper park beyond the great rocky peaks and the magnificent scenery that greets the eye as one passes up the valley, the Athabasca and of the tributary stream that flows from the summit, in the pass through which the two new Canadian transcontinentals will run, but it is certain that as development work continues new things will be discovered which will attract both tourists and men seeking investment in commercial enterprises.

When the party of G. T. P. officials flew on an inspection tour of the east section of the road return to Alberta and on by way of Edmonton to Jasper park they probably will conduct an investigation into the natural springs which are to be found just this side of the Athabasca crossing. They may prove a valuable asset to the railways as tourist-traffic producers for scientists who have examined small quantities of the water state that it probably will be found to possess great medicinal value. Information regarding the springs was sought by President Hays of the G. T. P. from Howard Douglas, commissioner of tourism government parks and as a result Mr. Douglas has looked over his files and secured the report of an analysis of the water made by Professor A. Metcalf of the laboratory of the inland revenue department at Ottawa. This report will be shown to President Hays on his return to Edmonton from the coast.

The two mineral springs were discovered last winter while the railways builders were blasting the right of way on this side of the Athabasca river. One of them is at mile 98 and the other is at mile 98, one mile further east.

In his report Professor Metcalf states that samples from both springs show indications of being mineral waters of the sulphated type. The sample from the spring at mile 98 contains free sulphurated hydrogen while the sample from the other spring contains a trace of lithium, probably as a result of the sample submitted for a test were so small that it was not possible to make a complete analysis and on his next trip to the park, Mr. Douglas will secure several quart of the water from both springs to be analyzed at Ottawa.

The presence of the streams may be detected very easily by any one within a radius of half a mile from the place

AUTUMN FASHIONS ARE NOW BEING DISPLAYED

Double-Faced Materials Again Come Into Use—Silk Serges Especially Popular—Greys and Purples Also Being Worn—Jackets of Varying Styles

New York, Sept. 2.—The fall season is rapidly approaching and the big shops display a large variety of autumn goods, in anticipation of the demands for such goods with the coming of cool weather. The models shown in the shops, however, are of the most comfortable type, without being indicative of the fashionable style of the coming season. The models shown by the more exclusive houses along Fifth avenue are somewhat more definite in style, but the ideas expressed are all more or less tentative. Nothing of an authoritative character is to be expected until later, after the famous Paris designers have had their autumn openings.

Double-faced materials are much in evidence and there is every indication that they will be extremely fashionable during the coming season. Some of these new double-faced suits are wonderfully beautiful in texture and color. Many of these materials in wool have a deep shilling finish, and the color contrasts in the two faces are admirably harmonious. Some particularly rich color effects are obtained in the tones, and indeed the yellows play a rather important role in the season's color chart.

The late summer has brought yellow into decided prominence abroad, tones of lemon, straw and various brownish and greenish yellow shades having been exceedingly modish, in combination with white, and this tendency, as well as the value of beige in combination with white, or gray, will doubtless find reflection in the autumn fashions.

The most beautiful double-faced materials seen so far are certain silk series of pronounced diagonal cord and of wonderful texture, softness and richness, having both the light and the dark sides in decided yet perfectly harmonized color contrasts. These beautiful deep tints, for example, may be for backing just the right tone of violet or green or blue. A seal brown shows a reverse side of exquisite purple or dull, soft orange. A very deep blue is combined with rich fuchsia, red or malachite green. Iron gray contrasts with the deep straw yellow which has been a favorite fad in Paris. Black is favored with any and all of the soft yet showing fashionable colors.

Changeable colorings also promise well, but only in the jackets, which have been a summer mainstay abroad, and have been taken up to a considerable extent here, but in other suits as well. Moires showing more or less pronounced cording in their weaves and changeable colorings are among the favorites of the new silks and there are also changeable jerseys and some very effective lunettes in color shot with black or white.

Two especially successful offerings in the lining weave, which has not been much to the fore in recent seasons and which is much more supple than it originally was, are in a light silvery gray, shot with black and white, which neatly give shifting shadowy play over the lustrous moiré surface, and in a yellow approaching the new bisette blue, though with a touch more of bronze shot with black.

One is inclined to put confidence in the success of the gray this season. Equivocal shading of this color are to be found among the loveliest of the new materials which cannot fail to appeal to the taste of the fastidious. Purple seems to be extremely popular and is likely to be done to death on that account. Much of the early millinery and many of the advance model frocks and accessories something of this purple hue; and while one must admit its effectiveness, he must also admit that it is not likely to be done to death on that account. With Young, Tenney, King, Steinfield and Duall, the Boston Hustlers surely have a big bunch of veterans. It is said that Manager Clark Griffith of the Cincinnati team is slated to manage the St. Louis Browns next season.

fact, are built on mannish lines and have the simple, notched collar and coat sleeves typical of a man's garments.

Natural colored linen seems to be most popular, although white and the varying shades of purple and lavender are seen to some extent. Havana brown, navy, buff, and light blue and a few of the darker green shades are also included in the list of popular colors.

The newest suits from abroad show a jacket averaging from 28 to 30 inches in length. These are to be the most notable in early fall designs. They are shown in varying styles, some being straight cut from the shoulder to the hips, while others are made to give the short-waisted effect. This short-waisted style is principally used on the dressier suits, while the "rough cut" is used on the plain and practical ones.

A good deal of attention is paid the collars, revers, and cuffs, which are frequently of satin or silk, while some are of linen in a contrasting shade. Plain black satin remains in favor for trimming.

The irreverent revers are again in evidence, and some of the new models show a revers on one side only. While the sailor collar is not so prominent as at first, it has not been entirely eliminated.

Many pointed collars are shown, and the fall models will probably show the large round collar with hood effects at the back. The skirts adhere to the present fashion of straight lines, close fitting about the hips, but show a little more width at the hem.

What Young People Have Done

By Thomas Tappan.

Many young men and women have done things worth while.

We generally explain the difference by saying that those who succeed when young are generous; while others are just average citizens.

It is a poor explanation. It is also a harmful explanation, because it attempts to make sheep and goats of us. The Creator never did that. We do it ourselves.

This article could be extended to fill this page, with examples of young men and women who have started with nothing and made a success of their work early in life.

Sir Humphrey Davy, born poor, became a professor chemistry at the Royal Institution in London, when he was twenty-three. He revolutionized the science of chemistry, and in the age of twenty-nine he was an expensive authority. Gavler, the French naturalist, said of him:

"They when not yet thirty-two years old, occupied in the opinion of all those who could judge of his worth, the first rank among the chemists of his or any other age."

Napoleon, one of the greatest painters, not only of Italy, but of the world, died at the age of thirty-seven.

Mozart, the composer, whose name will live for ages yet, if not forever, died at the age of thirty-five.

William Pitt, the English statesman who was a lawyer at twenty-one; the next year he entered Parliament; the next year he was made Chancellor of the Exchequer; the next year he was the Prime Minister of Great Britain.

Such illustrations can be found in great numbers. And they all teach us the same principle:

Be careful what you want to do, decide to do it, and do it, and you will be successful.

Starts a young woman or woman starts off on a trail with a lot of hope, works hard and fails to succeed. She has no information on the way that is useful. Often this information is the beginning of a new trail that is the right one to follow.

Here is a case in point. The first time she had the making of a great architect looked up in himself. He was poor and in doubt for work he made up his mind to learn practical chemistry and study architecture evenings. So he began.

He worked hard at his studies, made good progress in the sciences, but his teachers soon saw that he lacked enough originality to become anything but a very ordinary member of the profession he wished to enter.

Meanwhile he became a good carpenter, and studied every house he worked on, from the laying of its foundation to painting it. He used to make paint that once put on a house made it look rich and kept up its appearance. It was very well, gave satisfaction to the man that lived in the house, and made those envious who bought the other kind.

So the architect that was to be vent into the paint business made a success of it.

He began to study paint. There was so much in the study of paint that he had not suspected that he took a course in chemistry at a night school.

Finally, he saw that this was his field, and he followed it. He began to make paint that once put on a house made it look rich and kept up its appearance. It was very well, gave satisfaction to the man that lived in the house, and made those envious who bought the other kind.

So the architect that was to be vent into the paint business made a success of it.

It is often said that a little success is better than a big fortune. That depends. But in the case of this young man, who is now about thirty, it is true.

RAILS ORDERED FOR RAILWAY EXTENSION

Real Estate Firm Will Build Line and Guarantee City Against Loss for Period of 18 Months

The Magrath-Biggle Company Ltd., this morning telegraphed the order for the steel rails for the electric railway extension to Highlands park, the steel to be delivered within two or three weeks. The rails are ordered from the United States Steel Corporation and the rails are to come from Chicago. They are yet to be rolled. The rails they ordered the rails upon the assurance of the city council that they would guarantee the realty firm to spend $200,000 in street car construction, and would guarantee service on the line. The realty firm to guarantee the city against any possible loss through operation for the 18 months following the beginning of the operation of such line.

On Tuesday evening the city council will have presented to it the agreement, which will be signed by the city council, which will begin on the road construction.

IS LOVE BLIND?

"I can overlook his past," sighed the girl and mortified young woman, who was once a very careful girl, but she had received from her lover: "but I own I am bitterly disappointed with his present." The diamond was gone.

THE CROWN PRINCESS OF ROMANIA. Fashionable London today is raving over the beauty and grace of Marie, the Crown Princess of Roumania. The calm and dignified charm of this Italian princess is in vivid contrast with the state of misery and want that prevails in her unhappy country, as a result of the atrocities perpetrated against her neighbors, the Albanians.

The Crown Princess is still a visitor here, having prolonged her sojourn at the coronation. Londoners take delight in watching this visit, and beauty, who is next in popularity and position to the Queen herself.

DRIVING CLUB RACES (Western Associated Press) Toronto, Ont., Sept. 2.—Superior 10 cent race today, making 25 cents since lunch. This being the price up to 5.65 per 100 pounds in bag. The increase, wholesalers say, is on account of the poor hot crop.

FALLS UNDER TRAIN (Western Associated Press) Montreal, N.S., Sept. 1.—Fatal fall, aged 17, is dead, and Walter Mann, aged 26, will die, as the result of an accident here last night. Two of the children of the family, who were on an excursion train, were killed when the train derailed. The children were 17 and 26. The train was carrying a large number of passengers.

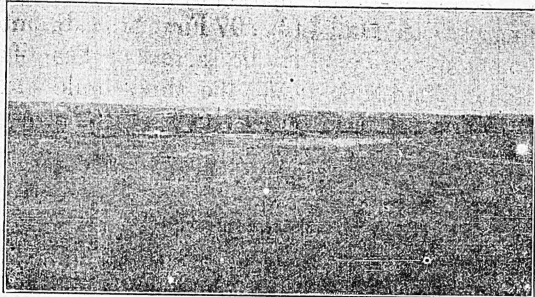

CORINTHIANS DISAPPOINTING. Nantam, N.S., Sept. 2.—Ladsyship unimpaired. The Corinthians yesterday through the visitors equalized the score in the last moment 2 to 2. The Corinthians were a great disappointment.

CLYDESDALE

The only Townsite of any Importance Between Edmonton and Athabasca Landing. Just Midway Between the Two

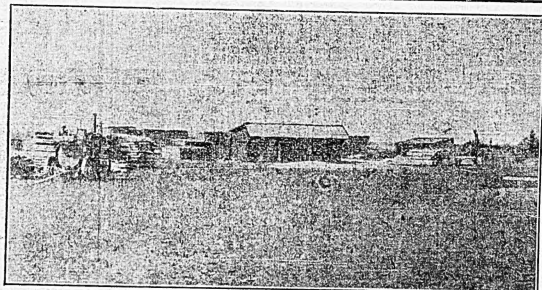

Photographs taken by R. C. Talbot of Strathcona, August 24, 25, 1911

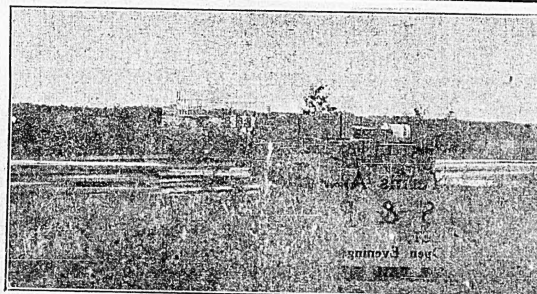

Construction train of C. N. R. standing at Clydesdale. This view gives an excellent idea of the nature of the ground. Clydesdale stands like an elevated plateau, from which are splendid views in nearly all directions. It could not be better adapted if it had been "made to order."

View looking South, showing train on siding at the depot and what the townsite of Clydesdale looks like in the first stage. Note the beautiful level nature of the ground and that it is almost entirely clear of trees. The bush shown in the distance comes beyond the townsite limits.

Lumber waiting to be converted into buildings at Mr. Kackosky's yard. In spite of suffering from two serious fires, this intrepid man has persevered and conquered. He now has vast quantities of lumber and a half-section of land all in good shape and proposes to establish a Sash and Door Factory at Clydesdale.

Clydesdale Hotel in its first stage. The lumber commenced to arrive on August 23rd, and the building is now well advanced. It will be well equipped in every way with all conveniences and a good well of water close at hand. The hotel will be opened about September 16th.

These Photographs show exactly what kind of a proposition Clydesdale is as a TOWNSITE. The fact that the surrounding country is all "Homestead Land" and that it has not been bought for speculation by large corporations, insures a big population, since nearly every quarter section comprises one family holding. Few farms occupy more than 320 acres. The district is 9 years old, therefore the settlement is ahead of the railroad, and the opening of a regular train service is all that is needed to make Clydesdale a busy business and distributing centre.

Real Estate BULLETIN

The movement on Jasper avenue west still continues, and we do not hesitate to predict that the next few weeks will witness one of the largest turnovers of Jasper properties west of Ninth street ever before recorded in the history of this city.

The steady demand for properties through the past summer months in all residential districts of the city has laid a foundation for a real estate movement which is appealing alike to large and small investors. It is hardly necessary to state that this movement is increasing and that we are now in an era of prosperity like which has never before been known in this municipality.

He is announced to give two addresses on the labor problem, including a new meeting at 3 p.m. when he will speak on the vexed question of "Capital and Labor." A free discussion will follow.

Work is progressing lively with the concrete wall being put in at the power plant. This is not that "shaky wall" over which a considerable fuss was made a while back. It is located on the first floor and partitioning off an apartment for the new turbine generator for which has been ordered to augment the power plant.

The Parker-Whitely Company, limited, which is directed attention to the advertisement in the Capital. They claim that their chest is the most satisfactory arrangement of the kind on the side of severance connections, at the present time being far ahead of the competition in the disposition of refuse.

Eight years old Marshall Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall residing on St. Andrew street, is being taken from a severe blow from a vicious dog sustained yesterday morning while the youngster was running in the park. The dog bit the youngster on the leg. Steps have been taken by the father of the injured lad to have the dog shot.

Gross receipts of the street railway for the month of August amounted to $25,058.85, an increase over the same month last year of $9,822.86. The total number of passengers carried during the month amounted to 613,000, while during August of last year the passengers carried were 589,630. Each week this month materially swelled the receipts.

The resignation of Dr. J. Hyslop as chief medical officer of the C. P. T. in Alberta was announced last night. It was handed to Dr. T. H. Hyslop, officials about five weeks ago, to take effect on August 31st. Dr. Hyslop gives as his reason for resigning the fact that his practice in the vicinity of Edmonton is as much as he can properly handle.

Justification of the possibility of a solution being tried whereby infectious diseases cases from outside the city shall not be brought into the city for treatment in the local hospitals, has been received by Dr. Whitelaw, medical health officer for the city from Dr. Irving. The M. H. O. is in favor of the project and believes that all construction camps in the country should make provision for their own patients.

A complete overhaul is being made on the electric trolley pump, the power plant, the overhauling extending from top to bottom, and slow to start. Plans leading to and from the turbine are likewise being examined and joints inspected. The turbine in the past has been closed by the city council, since the initial break to the turbine has been done a continuing effort will now be made to shut down and the overhauling begun.

An aged man named Augustus Leung came from the fever in his room in the annex of the Jasper hotel last night, and, unbeknown under the delusion that some one was seeking to kill him, he barricaded his door and refused admittance to all who attempted to enter. The emergency ambulance and the fire department were called to the room and the police were called. The old man was finally calmed by opening the door and he was led by Sergeant Lusk to the office of the hotel where he was examined by the ambulance which he was taken to the Misericordia hospital.

PLUMBERS TO HOLD CONFERENCE TODAY

WHEN IT IS PROBABLE DIFFERENCES IN REGARD TO WAGES WILL BE ADJUSTED

Not yet has the collection between the journeymen and master plumbers been settled. A meeting of master plumbers is called for this afternoon at 2 o'clock to consider the amendment to the amendment of the agreement. Tomorrow is the day of rest and Monday is Labor day when no man labors. Hence there will be no plumbing done before Tuesday at the earliest. The union plumbers are meeting today pretty much as they did yesterday. Whether any men should go to work today before the agreement is agreed upon and decided was left optional with the men. Now, if any available themselves of the opportunity to return to work.

The present difficulty might have been settled last night had the master plumbers been able to get together for a meeting of their union. Yesterday afternoon the committee from the masters and the union men held a meeting at the city hall. The master plumbers are now asking a wage of 60 cents minimum. The maximum is left an open question.

The masters have been wanting to place the scale at 57 1/2. It is said that the scale of 57 1/2 is what is paid in Calgary.

Although it cannot be said what the result of the present situation, nevertheless it is expected by both journeymen and masters that an amicable agreement will have been arrived at and signed up by Tuesday so that plumbing work will proceed at once.

SENDING BUFFALO TO MOOSE MOUNTAIN PARK

Monarchs of Prairie, Now at Wainwright, to be Given Charge of Pasture

Twenty-five or more of the buffalo which the province will be shipped this fall to Moose Mountain park, 127 miles southeast of Regina and 100 miles northwest of Edmonton, to be the herd of the Moose Mountain park reserve, 2,000 acres in extent. It has been taken from the forest reserve where the lumber is most scattered and where consequently the pasture is the best. The work of fencing it to receive the buffalo will be completed by the end of the month. The herd will be placed in the park at present, the number will be increased from year to year from the herd at Wainwright. Provision for the increase of the herd will be made by including in the buffalo enclosure a part of the White Bear Indian reserve which borders on the present buffalo park. The consent of the Indians on the reserve to leasing a part of their holdings to the government for a term of years is practically assured. The portion of the Indians' lands that will be secured will be even better suited to the purposes of a buffalo pasture than the section of the forest reserve already chosen.
